

SCENES IN ORIENT AS PHOTOGRAPHED BY J. P. MCCOY WHO IS NOW HERE

THAT the Boxers who are opposing the advance of the allied forces towards Peking from Tien-tsin are in a position to place the armies in jeopardy should they manage to reach the walls of the Imperial City, is vouched for by Mr. J. P. McCoy of New York City, who is now visiting relatives in this city. Mr. McCoy has just returned from the scene of the Boxer outrages in and around Tien-tsin, and was one of the citizen volunteers who went to Tien-tsin to keep the yellow hordes from the latter city.

In an interview granted an Advertiser representative yesterday, Mr. McCoy said: "I do not know myself just how the allied forces could escape destruction between Tien-tsin and Peking if the Boxers carry out their threat to cut the banks of the Grand Canal and flood the seventy miles of country between the two cities. The plains between are so low that they could easily inundate the entire district with several feet of water by merely breaking the banks of this canal. It is possible the Chinese are waiting until the advance troops reach Peking before they attempt this. By so doing they can half back the reinforcements from the coast and prevent them from marching further than Tien-tsin. Yes, I think such a course would inundate every bit of land. It has been very dry this season and I am not quite certain as to whether there is now a large amount of water in the canal. The Pei-ho river is full to the top of the banks during the rainy season. This is in July and August."

The heat is likely to have a bad effect on the soldiers of the foreign nations. The heat is very great at this time of the year, and sunstroke is common. The drinking water to be obtained by the troops is also very bad. Furthermore the strong winds cause clouds of dust to envelop everything with a thick coating, and make marching extremely fatiguing.

You cannot say that the old side-wheeled United States gunboat Monocacy which has popularly been supposed to be slowly rotting away in Chinese waters, has not performed heroic duty in the present campaign. She is now anchored about three miles from the mouth of the Pei-ho river at a place called Tong Ku, the coast terminal of the railroad which goes through Tien-tsin to Peking. The vessel went to its present post on June 12, in command of Captain Wiles. She lies right at the dock. But what has made the old gunboat famous in the present troubles is her water distilling apparatus. By taking the water of the river the Monocacy has supplied the soldiers of the allied forces who are stationed in the forts near by, and some of the English, Russian and German war vessels lying outside the mouth of the Pei-ho. She is also a base of supplies, forwarding provisions from the fleet to Tien-tsin for the respective forces at Tien-tsin. Tugs were used to convey the supplies to Tien-tsin while the railroad was being rebuilt. The commander of the Monocacy took possession of the Taku Lighter Company's tugs, which were manned by officers and men of the old gunboat, and these towed smaller boats loaded with provisions. Any boats were taken, whether Russian, English or French. It didn't matter which nationality they were intended for. The Monocacy was struck in the bow by a well directed shell, which tore a good sized hole in her, although far above the water line.

"Some distressing and horrible sights were witnessed when I went to Tien-tsin by river from Taku. Scores of bodies of Chinese were seen washed high upon the shore by the tide. They were to be seen in groups of from two and three to six and seven, in all degrees of decomposition. Many were minus their heads, feet and hands, showing that they were native Christians. Others, whose bodies were whole, were undoubtedly Boxers and Chinese soldiers. As they floated down with the tide they would become wedged in the old-style side-wheels of the Monocacy, and every day men had to disengage them from that position."

"The stench at Tien-tsin from the rotten refuse and decomposing bodies in the Pei-ho river, which ran through the city, was very strong. Every bit of water used had to be boiled and filtered. Probably 2,000 Boxers and Imperial soldiers were killed in and about Tien-tsin during the fight which occurred there, and these had to be buried. It is hard to imagine how foul the water is at that place."

"The general in charge of the 10,000 Imperial troops in Shantung Province refused at first to join the movement against the foreigners, and as far as I know he is still friendly to all foreigners. He has aided many foreigners to escape from his province, supplying them with military protection."

The photograph reproduced above was taken a short time since by Mr. McCoy, and are reproduced from plates in his possession. The central picture is the latest taken of Naval Constructor Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac episode at Santiago. The picture was taken at Nagasaki in a park. The ladies are Mrs. and Miss Butler, who were in Honolulu last week aboard the tramp steamer Thyra, with Mr. Butler, who is one of the owners of the steamer. Mr. Hobson appears in the photograph clean-shaven, a novelty to his admirers. The picture in the upper left hand corner shows a village of mud hovels at Tien-tsin which were utterly destroyed by the bombardment and fire. The opposite picture is the latest taken of Admiral Kempff, Admiral Remy and Captain Strong, taken aboard a vessel off the Taku coast after the allied fleets were assembled for active service. Admiral Remy is the central figure of the group, Admiral Kempff standing to the left.

The lower left hand reproduction is that of one of the principal gateways to the city of Peking, piercing the great wall. The wall itself is about eighty feet in height, making the top of the watch tower about 160 feet above the ground. The opposite picture shows the Taku forts after the bombardment. Mr. McCoy states that the shelling of these fortresses produced very little effect on them.

A ZOO FOR HONOLULU

Public Menagerie Is Suggested.

KAPIOLANI PARK LOCATION

Nucleus Offering and Citizens Might Supply Lack of Government Funds.

The suggestion has been made in the last few days that the Territorial Government establish a zoological garden in some favorable locality in Honolulu, preferably Kapiolani Park. Now that the Government Band plays no longer on Sundays at Maake Island, the park has been left without any particular Sunday attractions.

"There is no place so well suited for establishing a zoological garden as at Kapiolani Park," said a gentleman yesterday. "It is well wooded with plenty of shade; there are numerous waterways and small islands, and taken altogether there are ideal locations ready to be transformed for such an exhibit. As to the animals which could be maintained there, our islands furnish deer and wild goats. There are a variety of birds which can be captured, on the other islands especially. There is a small menagerie at the Arlington Hotel which would form the nucleus of a zoological garden. If the Government has no appropriation which it could draw upon to start the garden, there are philanthropic men and women in Honolulu who might be willing to purchase the animals and birds and donate them for such a purpose. It is a feature of public amusement which few cities nowadays overlook."

Secretary of the Territory H. E. Cooper was asked what he thought of the project. His reply was that it appeared to him at first blush to be a good one. He said he was now thoroughly interested in the establishment of an aquarium, and was doing everything possible to make a success of the thing which he broached to the public plan which he broached to the public a few weeks since, and that the zoological garden would follow as a natural course. "I do not know of any appropriate, however, for such a purpose," said Mr. Cooper. "It is a matter I have never thought of before."

Will E. Fisher, the real estate man, said that he had visited the large parks of most of the cities in the eastern States and always found the zoological gardens among the principal features. "Men employed during the week days down town and living down town to a greater extent," said he, "have no particular disposition to visit the Capitol grounds on Sunday, after having been housed up, and they certainly would like to visit the park and there receive the zephyrs from the sea. If the Government has any intention of creating a zoological garden or an aviary there is a nucleus now owned by Mr. Krouse of the Arlington Hotel. Inasmuch as it is proposed to dispose of everything there soon, I think it would be well instead of placing the menagerie in competition at auction, for some persons to figure on its purchase at the present time. Either the Government should make the purchase, or some of our philanthropists in Honolulu do so. I would be willing to contribute my mite."
